360 Degree Feedback The Powerful
A 360-degree feedback (also known as multi-rater feedback, multi source feedback, or multi source assessment) is a process through which feedback from an employee's subordinates, colleagues, and supervisor(s), as well as a self-evaluation by the employee themselves is gathered. Such feedback can also include, when relevant, feedback from external sources who interact with the employee, such as ...

360-degree feedback - Wikipedia
Organizations can do a poor job of introducing and using this type of multi-rater process, but it is possible, with the right steps, to do a good job of introducing and maximizing the value of 360-degree feedback. This matters because nothing raises hackles as fiercely as a change in performance feedback methods, especially when they may affect decisions about an employee's compensation.

A 360 degree feedback review is designed to gather anonymous feedback about an employee from the people working most closely with him or her — including direct reports (in the case of managers & supervisors), peers, and managers. In this regard it isn't a typical performance review. During a 360-degree review, a team member can expect to receive feedback from all angles.
